

Nearly half of Britons think the government support for household energy bills does not go far enough.

29 September 2022, London – Kantar Public's latest barometer reveals that nearly half of Britons think the government support for household energy bills does not go far enough, while two in five think support for businesses and charities is about right. A majority of Britons think the King and Royal Family are important to the UK in attracting tourism, improving Britain's image abroad, and helping to bring communities together.

Kantar Public's research took place between 22 and 26 September with the majority of the fieldwork conducted before the mini budget announcement on Friday 23 September and the start of the Labour Party Conference on 27 September. Key findings include:

- When asked about the government energy support package:
 - 48% think that the capping of household energy bills for a typical household at £2,500 a year does not go far enough.
 - The same proportion (48%) say that the £400 energy discount does not go far enough.
 - While 39% of Britons think the government's policy of capping energy prices for businesses and charities is about right. However, a similar proportion (37%) do not think these measures go far enough.
- 71% of Britons think the government has handled the rising cost of energy very/fairly poorly (-14 compared with August 2022¹). 20% think the government have handled it very/fairly well (+9). Only 9% are not sure (+4).
- When asked about which party leader would be best at tackling the UK's biggest policy challenges, opinion is split with a large proportion simply not knowing who would be better:
 - Liz Truss slightly leads Keir Starmer on: reducing serious crime; improving the economy; managing the COVID-19 pandemic; leading Britain if military action was needed; negotiating trade deals; managing Brexit and standing up to Russia.
 - Keir Starmer slightly leads Liz Truss on: reducing the cost of living; managing the NHS; tackling climate change; telling the truth and making decisions in the public interest.
 - However, more Britons selected neither party leader or said they do not know for all questions.
- When asked about the three most important priorities for the UK government to improve public life in the UK, Britons cite the following:
 - Reducing the cost of living (50%, -5).
 - Investing more in NHS capacity (35%, -2).
 - Ensuring there won't be energy shortages in the winter (28%, +1)

KANTAR PUBLIC

- A majority of Britons think the King and the Royal Family are important to the UK for attracting tourism (71%), improving Britain's image abroad (64%) and helping to bring communities together (55%).

More detailed analysis on themes:

1. Rising energy prices

When asked about the government's energy support package, nearly half of Britons think the support for household energy bills does not go far enough, however two in five Britons think the government measures to support businesses are about right:

- 48% say that the capping of household energy bills for a typical household at £2,500 a year does not go far enough. 32% say it is about right and only 5% think the policy goes too far. 14% don't know.
- A similar proportion (48%) say that the £400 energy discount does not go far enough. 35% say it is about right and only 4% say it goes too far. 13% don't know.
- While 39% of Britons think the government's policy of capping energy prices for businesses and charities is about right. 37% say that it does not go far enough. Only 5% say it goes too far and 18% don't know.

71% of Britons think the government has handled the rising cost of energy very/fairly poorly (-14). 20% think the government have handled it very/fairly well (+9). Only 9% are not sure (+4).

There remains broad support for the government to take further action to tackle rising energy prices, in addition to the policies they have already announced. However, there has been a small decrease in support for additional measures:

- Removing VAT from energy bills: 74% Strong/slightly support (-10)
- Taking measures to improve household energy efficiency (insulation, new boilers): 74% (-8)
- Increasing the £400 energy discount provided for all households from October: 74% (-7)
- Introducing a windfall tax on oil and gas companies' profits to fund support for households: 68% (-8)
- Temporarily nationalising energy companies that are unable to lower prices: 53% (-9)
- Permanently nationalising all energy companies and suppliers: 50% (-10)
- Removing green levies from energy bills: 49% (-4)

2. Household-level economic situation

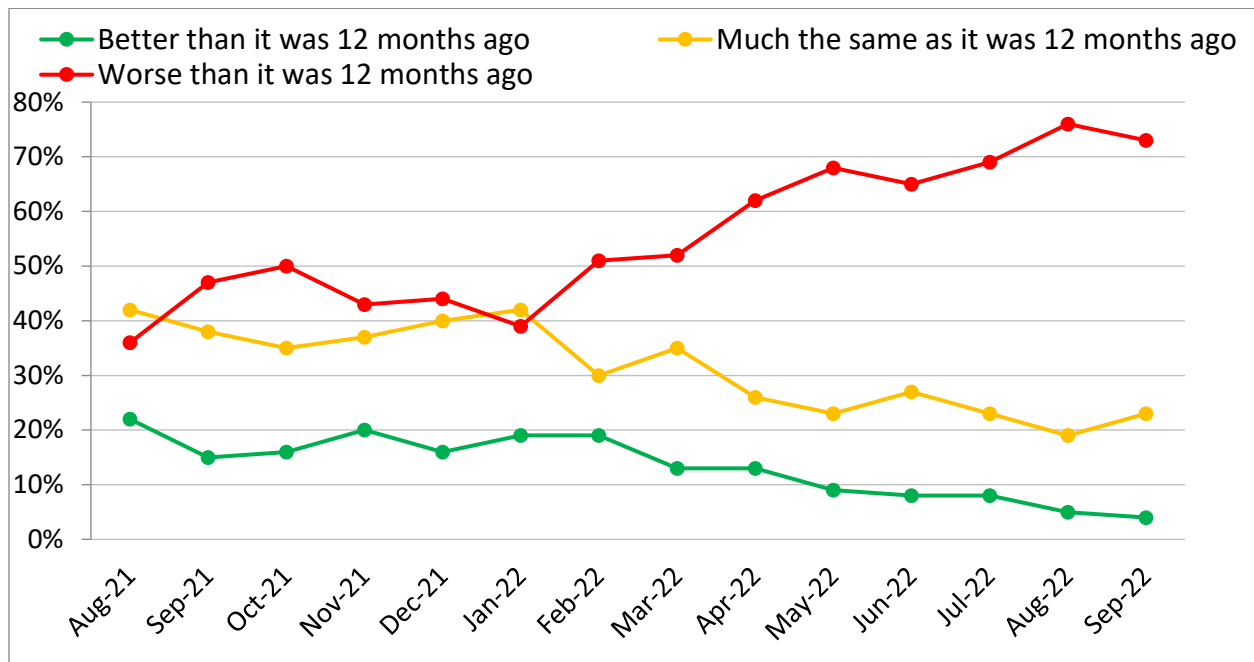

Britons remain pessimistic about the economy, with three quarters thinking the British economy is doing worse than it was a year ago.

- Three quarters of Britons (73%) think the British economy is doing worse than it was a year ago (-3 Vs August 2022). 23% think it is doing much the same (+4) but only 4% think it is doing better (-1).

KANTAR PUBLIC

- The chart below shows the proportion of Britons that think the economy is doing worse than it was a year ago has increased over the last year from 36% in August 2021², while the proportion who think it is doing better has decreased from 22% in August 2021.

Graph 1: Compared to a year ago, do you think the British economy is doing...?

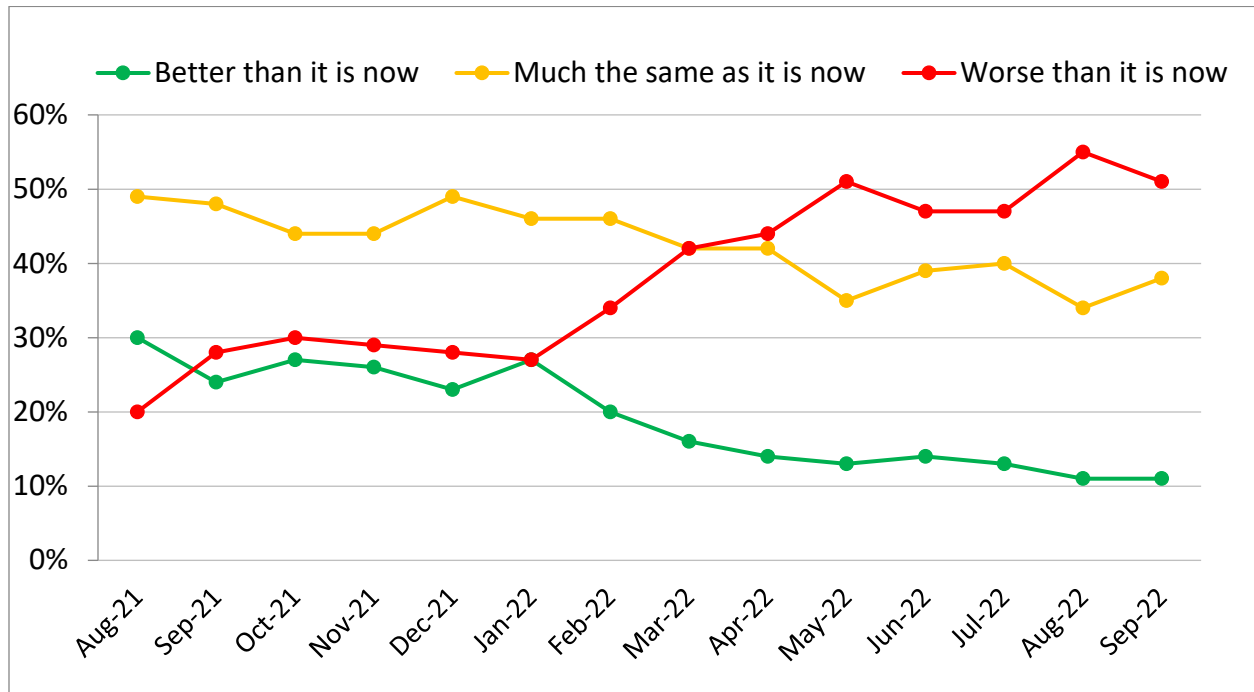

- Over half of Britons (51%) think that the British economy will be doing worse than it is now in a years' time (-4 Vs August 2022). 11% think that it will be doing better than it is now (nc).
- The chart below shows the proportion of Britons who think the economy will be doing worse in a years' time has increased over the last year from a low of 20% in August 2021. The proportion of Britons who think the economy will be doing better, or about the same has also fallen.

Graph 2: Thinking about the year ahead, do you think the economy will be doing...?

- More than three quarters of Britons (73%, -7 Vs August 2022) think the government has handled the cost of living crisis very/fairly poorly. 18% (+3) think the government has handled the crisis very/fairly well. 9% are not sure (+5).
- The majority of the fieldwork was conducted before the mini budget announcement on Friday 23 September. However, over a quarter of Britons (28%) think the British economy would benefit most from an increase in government spending. 23% think it would benefit from a reduction in government spending, and 14% think it would benefit most from no change in spending. 35% of Britons are unsure.

5. The importance of the King and Royal Family

A majority of Britons strongly/slightly agree that the King and the Royal Family are important to the UK for attracting tourism, improving Britain’s image abroad, and helping to bring communities together:

- Attracting tourism: 71%
- Improving Britain’s image abroad: 64%
- Helping to bring communities together: 55%
- Highlighting issues such as climate change: 50%
- Growing the UK economy: 48%
- Giving a voice to marginalised groups: 38%

Methodological information

The survey data and further details on the methodological approach of the Britain Barometer will be published here on the morning of Thursday 29 September.

A total of 1,141 interviews were conducted online among adults living in Great Britain between the 22 and 26 September 2022. All interviews were conducted online using the Kantar Research Express. The Kantar Profiles online access panel was the main sample source.

The data was weighted to match population totals for age, gender, 2019 General Election voting patterns, 2016 EU referendum voting patterns, education, region, and likelihood to vote in the next General Election. Any use of this research must cite Kantar Public as the source.

Polling Methodological Note – September 2022

A representative sample of 1,141 adults in Great Britain were interviewed between the 22nd and 26th September 2022. All interviews were conducted online using the Kantar Research Express. The Kantar online access panel was the main sample source.

The data was weighted to match population totals for age, gender, 2019 General Election voting patterns, 2016 EU referendum voting patterns, education, region, and likelihood to vote in the next General Election. Further details on the weighting are given on page two.

Voting intentions

The voting intention figures provided aim to show the current political opinion of the nation rather than to accurately predict the outcome of the next General Election.

As well as weighting the data, a Likelihood to Vote (LTV) Model has been used to estimate the voting probability of each respondent. These probabilities vary by stated likelihood of voting and whether reported voting in the 2019 general election. The probabilities themselves are based on those of respondents that participated in our polls immediately before and after the 2019 General Election.

Uncertainty

All polls are subject to a wide range of potential sources of error. On the basis of the historical record of the polls at recent general elections, there is a 9 in 10 chance that the true value of a party's support lies within 4 points of the estimates provided by this poll, and a 2 in 3 chance that it lies within 2 points.

Sampling variance

We have estimated the sampling variation in our voting intention estimates using the methodology proposed by Kuha and Sturgis (2017¹). Bootstrap resampling was used to draw fifty sets of respondents from the achieved sample (in a way which matched the quota sampling design), each of these new samples was weighted and we have then used the distribution of estimates (from the resamples) to calculate margins of error (the range containing all but the two most extreme resample results).

- Conservative Party = 32.1% to 38.9%
- Labour Party = 36.2% to 42.6%
- Labour lead over Conservatives = -1.1%pts to 9.3%pts

Weighting

Weights have been applied to the sample to ensure that it is representative of the general public in Great Britain aged 18+. The sources for the population totals are provided in each table.

The weighting targets have been revised to account for deaths and emigration since the 2016 referendum. The face-to-face 2017 British Election Survey was used to obtain estimated voting distributions for different age bands. ONS data was then used to estimate the number of deaths and the number of UK citizens to have emigrated since 2016 in each of these age bands. The size of each the Leave and Remain votes were then adjusted to reflect these population changes.

Likelihood to Vote in General Election

We have estimated the likelihood that each respondent will vote in the next General Election. This value is based on respondents' stated intention to vote and whether they voted in the last general election. The expected population turnout has been included as a population total in the weighting matrix. This turnout has been estimated based on the relationship between sample and population turnout rates in the 2017 general election.

	Unweighted percentage	Weighted percentage
Estimated Voting Age Population turnout if General Election were to be held tomorrow	80%	59%

The model was developed using data from respondents that participated in Kantar polls immediately prior to the 2019 general election and immediately after the election.
