

KANTAR PUBLIC

While Britons continue to struggle with the rising cost of living, there are some signs of improvement.

7 September 2023, London – Kantar Public's latest barometer reveals that:

1. While just under half of Britons said they are finding it harder to meet their monthly household budget. This figure continues to fall from the start of the year and is lowest recorded figure since January 2022¹.
2. Over half of Britons think the economy is doing worse than it was a year ago, however, this figure has fallen from 66% in February 2023².
3. Half of Britons think that the governments' measures to reduce illegal immigration do not go far enough.
4. More than 3 in 5 Britons are not confident that the UK will be able to achieve a Net Zero economy by 2050.
5. Despite this, a majority of Britons think the government should prioritise reducing the cost of living, even if it means delaying actions to reduce climate change.

Kantar Public's research took place between the 31 August and 4 September 2023 with the majority of fieldwork conducted before the announcement of school closures on Friday 1 September.

More detailed analysis on themes:

1. The cost of living

Britons continue to think the economy will stagnate. Although there are some signs of improvement compared with earlier in the year.

- Just under half of Britons (48%) said they are finding it harder to meet their monthly household budget compared to a year ago (-11% vs May 2023). This figure is the lowest recorded figure since January 2022, when 44% said they were finding it harder. 39% are finding it about the same (+7). 12% are finding it easier (+3)

KANTAR PUBLIC

- Over half of Britons (52%) think the economy is doing worse than it was a year ago. This figure continues to fall from 58% in May 2023³ and 66% in February 2023. 36% think it is doing much the same (+4 vs May 2023), but only 12% think it is doing better (+2).
- Under half of Britons (48%) think the economy will be doing much the same as it is now in a years' time (-3 vs May 2023). A third (32%) think it will be doing worse (+1). 21% think it will be doing better than it is now (+3).
- 71% of Britons rate the government as handling the economy very/fairly poorly. Only 21% rate the government as handling it very/fairly well. 8% are not sure.
- 78% of Britons (-2 vs May 2023) think the government is handling cost of living very/fairly poorly. 16% (+1) think the government has handled this very/fairly well. 5% are not sure (nc).

2. Immigration

- Half of Britons (50%) think the actions and measures the government have taken over the last 12 months to reduce illegal immigration do not go far enough. 17% think they go too far. 9% think they are about right, and a quarter (24%) don't know.
 - 78% of 2019 Conservative voters think the measures do not go far enough, while only 11% think they go too far.
- 73% of Britons think the government is handling illegal immigration very/fairly poorly. 19% of Britons would say that the government is handling it very/fairly well. 9% are not sure.
- A fifth of Britons (21%) ranked 'stricter border controls to reduce immigration' as one of their top three priorities for the UK government to tackle (+1 vs May 2023). This is ranked below cost of living (42%), investing in NHS capacity (38%), growing the economy (25%), and affordable housing (23%).

3. Climate change

- 61% of Britons are not very/not at all confident that the UK will be able to achieve a net zero economy by 2050. A quarter (24%) are very/fairly confident. 16% don't know.
- When asked whether the government should prioritise reducing the cost of living for households, or taking action to reduce climate change:

KANTAR PUBLIC

- 59% of Britons said that the government should prioritise reducing the cost of living for households, even if it meant delaying actions to reduce the impact of climate change.
- A fifth of Britons (21%) said the government should prioritise actions to reduce the impact of climate change, even if it meant increased costs for households.
- 20% of Britons did not know which the government should prioritise.
- Nearly two thirds of Britons (64%) are very/fairly concerned about climate change and its consequences (-1 vs November 2022⁴). Under a third (29%) are not very/not at all concerned (+5). 7% don't know (-4%).
- Over half of Britons (53%) think the government is handling climate change very/fairly poorly (+1 vs May 2023). 28% think the government is handling of climate change very/fairly well (-4%). 18% are not sure (+2).
- A majority (55%) rate the cooperation between countries globally to tackle climate change as fairly poor or very poor. While only 25% rate it as very or fairly good.

4. Policy priorities

When asked about the three most important priorities for the UK government if it is to improve public life in the UK, Britons cite the following:

- Reducing the cost of living for households (42%, -10 vs May 2023)
- Investing more in NHS capacity (38%, nc)
- Growing the UK's economy (25%, -3)
- Affordable housing (23%, +2)
- Stricter border controls to reduce immigration (21%, +1)

5. Voting intentions (Note: 31 August and 4 September 2023 with the majority of fieldwork conducted before the announcement of school closures on Friday 1 September):

- Labour 43% (+1 vs May 2023)
- Conservatives 27% (-2)
- Liberal Democrats 13% (+2)
- Green 5% (nc)
- SNP 5% (+1)
- Reform UK 4% (-1)
- UKIP 1% (nc)
- Plaid Cymru <1% (-1)
- Other 1% (nc)

Methodological information

The survey data and further details on the methodological approach of the Britain Barometer will be published here on the morning of Thursday 7 September.

A total of 1,146 interviews were conducted online among adults living in Great Britain between the 31 August and 4 September 2023. All interviews were conducted online using the Kantar Research Express. The Kantar Profiles online access panel was the main sample source.

The data was weighted to match population totals for age, gender, 2019 General Election voting patterns, 2016 EU referendum voting patterns, education, region, and likelihood to vote in the next General Election. Any use of this research must cite Kantar Public as the source.

Polling Methodological Note – September 2023

A representative sample of 1,146 adults in Great Britain were interviewed between the 31st August and 4th September 2023. All interviews were conducted online using the Kantar Research Express. The Kantar online access panel was the main sample source.

The data was weighted to match population totals for age, gender, 2019 General Election voting patterns, 2016 EU referendum voting patterns, education, region, and likelihood to vote in the next General Election. Further details on the weighting are given on page three.

Voting intentions

The voting intention figures provided aim to show the current political opinion of the nation rather than to accurately predict the outcome of the next General Election.

As well as weighting the data, a Likelihood to Vote (LTV) Model has been used to estimate the voting probability of each respondent. These probabilities vary by stated likelihood of voting and whether reported voting in the 2019 general election. The probabilities themselves are based on those of respondents that participated in our polls immediately before and after the 2019 General Election.

Past vote weighting

When weighting the data, Kantar Public seek to ensure that the sample is politically representative. One element of this is to use information provided by respondents about whether they voted for in the 2019 general election and – if so – which party they voted for. Where this information is missing, we impute it based on other information respondents have provided. In the past, we weighted our poll sample to match the election results exactly (including the correct number of non-voters in the general population).

We have re-analysed all the polls we have conducted since the last general election to identify how reports of voting behaviour have changed since December 2019. This study found a decline in the probability that a 2019 Conservative voter will now report having voted Conservative in that election. If the outcomes from this study are ignored when we weight our data, 2019 Conservative voters will be over-represented in the sample. Consequently, we now incorporate the results from this study when constructing the target political profile we weight our sample to. We will update this profile regularly as more data is collected.

The political profile used for this poll is:

No vote	48%
Conservative	23%
Labour	18%
Liberal Democrats	5%
SNP	3%
Other	3%

Uncertainty

All polls are subject to a wide range of potential sources of error. On the basis of the historical record of the polls at recent general elections, there is a 9 in 10 chance that the true value of a party's support lies within 4 points of the estimates provided by this poll, and a 2 in 3 chance that it lies within 2 points.

Sampling variance

We have estimated the sampling variation in our voting intention estimates using the methodology proposed by Kuha and Sturgis (2017¹). Bootstrap resampling was used to draw fifty sets of respondents from the achieved sample (in a way which matched the quota sampling design), each of these new samples was weighted and we have then used the distribution of estimates (from the resamples) to calculate margins of error (the range containing all but the two most extreme resample results).

- Conservative Party = 24.4% to 30.0%
- Labour Party = 40.1% to 47.2%
- Labour lead over Conservatives = 11.0%pts to 22.6%pts

Weighting

Weights have been applied to the sample to ensure that it is representative of the general public in Great Britain aged 18+. The sources for the population totals are provided in each table.

Likelihood to Vote in General Election

We have estimated the likelihood that each respondent will vote in the next General Election. This value is based on respondents' stated intention to vote and whether they voted in the last general election. The expected population turnout has been included as a population total in the weighting matrix. This turnout has been estimated based on the relationship between sample and population turnout rates in the 2017 general election.

	Unweighted percentage	Weighted percentage
Estimated Voting Age Population turnout if General Election were to be held tomorrow	79%	57%

The model was developed using data from respondents that participated in Kantar polls immediately prior to the 2019 general election and immediately after the election.
